A Lifetime in Little Portugal

Joe:

A retired carpenter who built much of his home himself.

Maria:

His wife of over 50 years, known for her warmth and love of gardening.

Their home:

A modest property in Toronto's Little Portugal, symbolizing decades of hard work.

The challenge:

Rising property taxes, living costs, and maintenance expenses threatened their retirement comfort.

Caught Between Legacy and Reality

Fixed income stretched thin by soaring costs.

Housing market pressures in Toronto leaving them with few options.

Fear of losing the home they spent their lives building.

Risk:
Selling the home or falling into financial hardship.
